Surrenders After Being Worn Out With Cold and Hunger.

A DECOY LETTER SENT HIM.

It Was Written by the Dead Man' Daughter, but it Did Not Reach Him-Miss Turner Denies Any Intimacy With Gilligan.

SUFFOLK, VA., Jan. 15.-Special.-Tired of being a fugitive, and nearly worn out with long exposure to cold, A. C. Gilligan, who is accused of slaying C. Beverly Turner, the rich father of the young woman he loved, this morning surrendered to James Barham, in Surry county. The prisoner was delivered to the county sheriff, who ordered him sent to jail.

LYNCHING FEARED. After a conference between the author-ities of Surry and Isle of Wight, it was decided to have Gilligan carried to a jall in Petersburg for safe-keeping. There have been lynching rumors, and they do not want to take chances. Gilligan walved examination.

Last Sunday afternoon Miss Isabelle
Turner, daughter of the victim, was induced to write a decoy letter to Gilligan.

AFFECTIONATE EPISTLE.

An affectionate epistle was indited, but Gilligan gave up before the decoy letter had been received.

Miss Turner declared that she had thought well of Gilligan, but denied that there had ever been any intimacy.

SENATE DISCUSS THE PHILIPPINES

Mr. Pettigrew Scathingly Arraigned by Mr. Wolcott.

DUTY TO QUELL INSURRECTION.

Dakota to Say a Kind or Friendly Word About a Single Person or a Single Cause.

WASHINGTON, JAN. 15.-There was nother animated Philippine discussion to-day in the Senate, in the course of which Mr. Pettigrew, of South Dakota, was scathingly arraigned by Mr. Wolcolt, of Colorado.

At the opening Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, read the resolutions presented by Mr. Bacon, of Georgia, and Beverldge, of Indiana, Those who desired to discuss the Philippine question, said Mr. Berry, were met by the objection that they were aiding those who were in arms against the United States and were responsible for the loss of life among our soldiers He regarded this position as absolutely unwarranted. The Beverldge resolution had been endorsed, he said, by the Ad-ministration leaders, yet it conferred an authority and a power upon this country as absolute as was possessed by the Czar as absolute as was possessed by the Caar of Russia. What is Imperialism, Mr.
Berry asked, if it be not the assertion of such a power as is asserted by the resolution of Mr. Beveridge.

He declared his unalterable opposition to such a declaration and believed the people of the United States would not approve so plain a violation of the Con-stitution.

Berry did not admit that the American people were the trustees of the Lord in the appointed work of civilizing

He said that when men asserted that they were the trustees of the Lord he wanted some more substantial proof of the assertion than their own word, and such a trusteeship ultimately would destrey the foundations of the government He argued in favor of the Bacon reso lution, and said if that were adopted today, not another gun would be fired in the Philippine revolution, and all the material advantages sought by Mr. Beverlige would be gained.

PRESIDENT RESPONSIBLE. He placed the responsibility for the in surrection upon the President, declaring surrection upon the President, declaring that if his preclamation had not been issued, not a gun would have been fired, and not a drop of our soldiers' blood would have been shed. He said that, in his opinion, the President had issued that proclamation unwillingly; that he had been forced into that position he now occupied by scheming politicians. The been forced into that position he now oc-cupied by scheming politicians. The wrong could not be repaired by the adop-tion of the Bacon resolution. Mr. Pettigrew resumed his speech upon the general Philippine question, his text being his resolution of inquiry. He said the logical conclusion of a policy of deny-ing freedom to others would be the de-struction of the republic. struction of the republic.

Mr. Pettigrew discussed at length the involved in the administraquestion involved in the administra-tion's Philippine policy. He then entered upon a sharp attack on the treaty made by the Americans with the Sultan of Sulu. He charged that polygamy and slavery were not only endorsed, but main-tained by the United States through this

He declared that the Republican party ms going out of power as the champion of slavery and a supporter of the Declaration of Independence.

At 2 o'clock the financial bill, as the unfinished business; was laid before the Senate. By unanimous consent it was arranged that Mr. Pettigrew should con-clude his speech, and be followed by Mr. Wolcott with a brief reply, before consideration of the financial bill should be re-

Mr. Petitigrew cited Egypt as a country brought under English civilizing sway. As a result over 3,500 minions of the English government were wringing taxes from the oppressed people in Egypt in the name of civilization. Ireland, Catholic Ireland, was also bowed down under the English yoke. If we desired to make war upon Catholics, however, we could find them nearer home. Aside from all the considerations, Mr. Pettigrew argued that the Americans could not dominate the Philippines. It was a historical fact, he asserted, that the Aryan race could not live in the Tronics. He contended he asserted, that the Aryan race could not live in the Tropics. He contended that trade did not follow the flag and that we have to ship our supplies there. He referred to the competing of our workman with six million cheap workers in the Philippines, the taxing to support an army of occupation and what he called the subsidy of ships to carry trade that the trusts might exploit the labor of the Philippines. To hold the Filipinos without their consent, he said, gave the lie to every Fourth of July oration ever delivered in this country.

He agreed with Lincoln that a house divided against Itself could not stand.

divided against itself could not stand. Mr. Wolcott, of Colorado, followed. He Mr. Wolcott, of Colorado, followed. He said our first duty is to quell the insurrection. When that prevailed it was time enough to bring order out of the choas that existed there. He would not have replied at all save for the "remarkable intemperate" uiterances of the Senator from South Dakofa. No better demonstration of the value of the Senate as a public forum could be found than this speech. There were in this country seventy millions of people; good, bad and indifferent. In the worm sunshine some saw only the shadows; behind every good action they looked for a every good action they looked for a urking sinister purpose. There was but lurking sinister purpose. There was but a step from individual to national hatred hatred of the country which nourished and protected them. It was fitting that such people should be represented here. NONE SO FIT.

"And I know of no man so fitted to speak for them as the Schator from South Dakota," said Mr. Wolcott, turning his eyes upon Mr. Pettigrew, who sat close to him, and who steadily returned the gaze of his assaliant. ""During all the years I have known him," continued Mr. Wolcott, "I never knew him to say a kind or friendly word about a single person or a single cause.

knew him to say a kind or friendly word about a single person or a single caust. It is not only valuable that such persons as I have mentioned should be represented here, that their views should be aired and ventilated, but it is of great importance that those views may serve as a warning to the young men who are growing to manhood, and upon whom eventually the responsibility of government will fall. They should see how important it is responsibility of government will fall. They should see how important it is that they should cultivate a good-digestion, a hopeful heart and a cheerful mind."

Air. Wolcott said he did not share the suggestions that utterance here had any influence upon the insurgents. If Aguinaldo had his ear to the ground he must know how utterly trifling is the captious caviling that went on here. There was not an honest Democrat who did not admit if his party were in power the first thing to be done would be to crush the insurrection. Air. CLAD IN A SMILE.

"I have no doubt he would fight," remarked Mr. Wolcott, sarcastically, "If he were a Tagal. It is possible they might take him by adoption. I can picture him now—char principally in the genial, pleasant smile for which he is noted (laughter), blazing away with his blunderbuss arguing a very one in sight. A suggestion blazing away with his blunderbuss against every one in sight. A suggestion that a senator and Aguinaldo inaugurate an exchange might, for the purpose of experiment, not be without its attraction. If the exchange should take place, and if Aguinaldo, brave, loyal and patriotic, stood here representing the State of South Dakota, whose sons had bled and died in defence of the flag, he would not be found traducing the President of the United States and slandering and maligning the soldiers at the front, charging them with being swindlers and defrauders."

The resolutions to which Mr.Pettigrew had been speaking, Mr. Wolcott declared were simply petty carpings which contained the suspicious intimation that there had been crooked and dishonorable conduct. No step had been taken, Mr. Wolcott asserted, that did not reflect honor upon the people of the United States. He upon the people of the United States. He read from the President's message a closing quotation, he made which was that it was "Their liberty not our power which we are seeking to enhance."

"That," said Mr. Wolcott, "was the last public utterance of the President, whose treatment of the Filipinos is described by the Senator from South Dakota as "brutal" and "cruel."

Mr. Wolcott said we had taken the Philipines, not as a conquest, but as one

Mr. Wolcott said we had taken the Philippines, not as a conquest, but as one of the highest duties we owed to the human race. When we inaugurated the war no one dreamed of the Philippines, but when it closed so quickly and so victoriously we found that 5,000,000 people victoriously we found that 5,00,000 people suffering from oppression and cruelty, Spain defeated and bankrupt, and the Philippine Islands a, floating derelict. We had taken them because to have allowed them to drift helplessly into the power of another would have raised international complications. We would have been compelled to take them had they been as bleak and barren as the they been as bleak and barren as the

England and Germany in the partition of China, we must needs seize Madagascar and Port Arthur.

"My own idea of the mission of America," said the Senator, "is that it is the last hope of the republics; that our broad, large, fertile area will gradually fill up by the admission of the foreigners' and oppressed of other lands, and that in days of peace we will work out the noblest and highest social problems. I believe it is idle to tell of our being God's chosen people."

Mr. Pettigrew replied briefly, saying his relations in the Senate had been most pleasant, and the Senate could not hidde pleasant, and the Senate could not hide behind the large personality of Mr. Wol-cott. He did not think the attack upon cott. He did not think the attack upon himself was worthy of reply, and said that while he had not spent much time in lauding Mr. Wolcott, he was "ready to confess he has a large volce."

"I marvelled at the division in the ranks of the Imperialists. The senator from Indiana (Beverldge) had said that motive of expansion was "greed," the motive of expansion was 'greed,' the senator from Colorado (Wolcott) said it senator from Colorado (Wolcott) said it was yhpilanthropy.' The latter was the motive which actuated Spain in her conquest of the western world. Her pretext was civilization and religious zeal.
